

Title; Chief Strategist, connected and automated transports, Swedish Transport Administration

Bio

Mr. Hamid Zarghampour is currently responsible for the Swedish Transport Administration's strategies and related activities for the introduction of connected and automated road transports. It includes coordination of the ongoing national projects, participation on the Swedish Strategic Innovation Platforms (such as: Drive Sweden and Next Generation Transports) and collaboration with the EU member states in various areas of connected and automated road transports.

Mr. Zarghampour started his career at the Swedish Road Administration for about 24 years ago. He has worked within the field of transport planning in general and road asset management in particular. Mr. Zarghampour has been actively working for implementation of innovative solutions, encouraging sustainable development globally. Since 2013, he has mainly worked with research and innovation within the field of Connected and automated transports.